

Poetry Collection: Feeling Into Love, Heartbreak, & the Universal Self

Love and heartbreak are two of the most universal human experiences. We all fall in love at some point in our lives, and we all experience the pain of heartbreak when those relationships end. Poetry can help us to process these emotions and make sense of our experiences.

This collection of poems explores the themes of love, heartbreak, and the universal self. The poems in this collection are written by a variety of poets from different cultures and time periods. They offer a diverse range of perspectives on these universal experiences.

Love is a complex and multifaceted emotion. It can be passionate, romantic, platonic, or even familial. No matter what form it takes, love has the power to transform our lives.

The Neurogenesis of Heartbreak: A poetry collection feeling into love, heartbreak & the universal self

by Singkepe

★★★★★ 5 out of 5

Language : English

File size : 2479 KB

Text-to-Speech : Enabled

Screen Reader : Supported

Enhanced typesetting : Enabled

Print length : 36 pages

Lending : Enabled

Paperback : 96 pages

Item Weight : 6.4 ounces

Dimensions : 5.25 x 0.75 x 8.25 inches

The poems in this section explore the different aspects of love. Some poems celebrate the joy and happiness that love can bring. Others explore the pain and heartache that can come with love.

- "Sonnet 18" by William Shakespeare
- "Love Sonnet" by Pablo Neruda
- "I Carry Your Heart with Me (I Carry It in My Heart)" by E.E. Cummings
- "When I Have Fears That I May Cease to Be" by John Keats
- "Love Is Not All" by Edna St. Vincent Millay

Heartbreak is one of the most painful experiences that we can go through. It can feel like our world is falling apart. Poetry can help us to grieve our losses and heal our broken hearts.

The poems in this section explore the different stages of heartbreak. Some poems capture the raw pain and anger that we feel immediately after a breakup. Others offer comfort and hope for the future.

- "The Broken Heart" by Emily Dickinson
- "Heartbreak Hotel" by Elvis Presley
- "I Will Survive" by Gloria Gaynor
- "Stronger" by Kelly Clarkson

- "Rise Like a Phoenix" by Conchita Wurst

Love and heartbreak are not just individual experiences. They are also universal experiences that connect us all. Poetry can help us to recognize our shared humanity and to find solace in the knowledge that we are not alone.

The poems in this section explore the universal self. Some poems celebrate the beauty and diversity of human existence. Others explore the challenges and struggles that we all face.

- "I Am" by Maya Angelou
- "The Human Family" by Walt Whitman
- "We Real Cool" by Gwendolyn Brooks
- "The World Is Too Much with Us" by William Wordsworth
- "Do Not Go Gentle into That Good Night" by Dylan Thomas

Love, heartbreak, and the universal self are all interconnected themes. They are part of the human experience, and they are all worthy of being explored through poetry. This collection of poems offers a diverse range of perspectives on these universal themes. They can help us to process our emotions, make sense of our experiences, and find solace in the knowledge that we are not alone.

The Neurogenesis of Heartbreak: A poetry collection feeling into love, heartbreak & the universal self

by Singkepe

★★★★★ 5 out of 5

Language : English

File size	: 2479 KB
Text-to-Speech	: Enabled
Screen Reader	: Supported
Enhanced typesetting	: Enabled
Print length	: 36 pages
Lending	: Enabled
Paperback	: 96 pages
Item Weight	: 6.4 ounces
Dimensions	: 5.25 x 0.75 x 8.25 inches

Unveiling the Enchanting Tale of Plant Reproduction: A Journey through the Botanical Realm

Plants, the silent yet vibrant guardians of our planet, play a pivotal role in sustaining life on Earth. Their ability to reproduce is crucial for maintaining the...

Master International Marketing in 100 Minutes: A Comprehensive Guide

Expanding your business globally presents an exciting opportunity for growth, but also a unique set of challenges. International...