In the vibrant heart of Glasgow, where the bustling streets pulse with life, a unique and innovative project is capturing the raw and honest voices of the people. Toerags Tales Glasgow Street Poetry is a powerful and evocative testament to the human spirit, giving voice to the marginalized and voiceless, shedding light on the struggles and triumphs of everyday life in the city.

The Birth of Toerags Tales

Toerags Tales was founded in 2010 by poet and community activist Gerry Cambridge. Inspired by the rich tradition of oral storytelling and the vibrant street culture of Glasgow, Gerry set out to create a platform where the voices of the city's most vulnerable and marginalized could be heard.

Through workshops, open mics, and community events, Toerags Tales has become a safe and welcoming space for people from all walks of life to share their stories, experiences, and perspectives. The project has fostered a sense of community and belonging, connecting people who might otherwise feel isolated or unseen.

Voices from the Margins

The poems of Toerags Tales are as diverse as the city itself. They speak to the challenges of poverty, addiction, homelessness, and mental illness. They celebrate the resilience, humor, and creativity of the human spirit. They give voice to those who are often overlooked or ignored.

Here is a sample of some of the powerful and moving poems from Toerags Tales:

- "The Glasgow Bluebird" by Gerry Cambridge

Ah, the Glasgow Bluebird sings her song, In a city where the sun don't shine so long. She sings of hope, and she sings of dreams, In a place where life can often seem.

- "The Ballad of the Homeless Man" by Paul Malloy

He sits on the street, a forgotten soul, In the city's heart, but left to roam. His eyes tell a story of pain and strife, A life unfulfilled, a wasted life.

- "Ode to the Barras" by Allison Galbraith

Oh, Barras, market of dreams and delights, Where treasures and memories take flight. From vintage clothes to bric-a-brac galore, You're a haven for the curious and the poor.
